Assemblyman Floyd Mori spoke to a group of Japanese college students Friday at Shannon Community Center — but a communication gap prevailed.

Floyd and kids bridge gap

DUBLIN — In what seemed a light-hearted exercise in frustration, Assemblyman Floyd Mori spoke to 42 visiting students from Japan for about 20 minutes Friday before discovering that very few, if any, could understand what he was saying.

Mori doesn't speak Japanese. And while most of the young women from a private college in Tokyo spoke some English, they couldn't keep up with Mori's fast-paced mini-speeches on government, discrimination, and the American way.

The women, mostly 18-21 years old, attend Otsuma College in Tokyo, a private women's school. They will remain in the valley for one more week as part of the Homestay Program, each with staying with a family in Pleasanton or Dublin.

The women assembled at Shannon Community Center Friday morning to hear Mori discourse as a Japanese-American involved in government — a nearly unique situation, according to Mori.

"I was the youngest of eight children on a farm in Utah," Mori began. "My oldest brother flew to Japan right after World War II and was killed in a plane crash." Polite nods trailed his words.

"Another of my brothers is an executive in a Livermore steel company." Stone silence.

"And I have a sister who works in Los Angeles for Sumitomo Bank." "Aahhh," said a collective sigh filtering across the room, acknowledging at least a partial understanding.

The determined assemblyman continued: "California has the largest Japanese population in the country. Japanese were evacuated from California during the war, did you know that?"

Sensing an unspoken understanding, Mori went on: "A large degree of reluctance still persists in accepting minorities, which includes Japanese, into employment. Most of the Japanese (currently in jobs) are in clerical positions, and haven't been able to move up."

"Our new governor has probably done more for Japanese than any governor in the past," Mori said, naming the head of the state prison system, consumer affairs department, and two judges as examples.

"Most Asians will get to a middle management position, and can't get much higher."

"For the most part, Japanese have been able to assimilate into society — for the most part. As a part of the state legislature, I am trying to insure that Asian Americans have the same kinds of opportunities, and have some people to model their lives after," he said.

Blank faces followed his every move.

"I've been talking a lot, and I don't think they've understood a word I've said," Mori finally said.

After a little nervous laughter and some conversation amongst the assembled students, an understanding between Mori and the collegians was assured.

The young assemblyman received a warm show of applause, and the students returned to their temporary homes, to continue learning the strange ways of a foreign land.

Including a couple of classes in conversational English.

Morrison suit ruling threatens growth control

PLEASANTON — The California Supreme Court refused to hear the city's appeal on the Morrison Homes suit and the results could have big implications for cities throughout the state, including important consequences for the city's growth management program, said City Attorney Ken Scheidig.

On the face of it, the result of the suit will be Morrison Homes' collection of $75,000 damages because the city denied the developer sewer connections in 1973 at the city sewage treatment plant.

Morrison Homes had an annexation agreement signed by the 1963 city council which promised the developer a certain number of sewer connections. The superior court and the state appellate court ruled that that the sewer agreement was valid and the promise of the 1963 city council was binding, even 10 years later when conditions had changed and the city could not deliver the connections.

The Supreme Court, by not taking the case, insured that the appellate court decision will stand.

Several California cities, including Livermore, filed "friend of the court" briefs in the suit because they felt the appellate court decision tampered with a city's police powers. If a city can't deliver sewer connections as part of its role as guardian of public safety and health, it should not be expected to deliver them or compensate the developer, said Pleasanton and the other cities.

Another implication of the suit is that a city trying to control its growth won't be able to point to a lack of sewer connections as sufficient reason, said Scheidig. Other factors will have to be taken into account, for example, how much the water, police, fire, and other municipal services are strained by new development.

It won't make growth control impossible, but it means the justification will have to be greater, said Scheidig. Pleasanton is embarked on a growth control program and City Manager Bill Edgar already has discussed the broader impacts which growth would have on all city services; he has not relied just on development's potential stress on the city's sewer treatment capacities.

Another implication of the suit is that it could set the city's sewer connection priority list awry. The city council intends to issue 140 connections a year over the next five years to the Sunol plant, prior to its phaseout.

This rationing would bring the plant to its full capacity. Some of these reserved slots are for commercial and industrial. But if some holders of annexation agreements for residential properties come in, their requests would have to be honored first, judging by the decision in the Morrison case. In that case, they could bump out the commercial and industrial slots. Or if the commercial and industrial and non-annex residential permits already were issued, the residential developers presumably could sue for damages as Morrison did. If that happened and the plant were operating at full capacity, the damages could drag on until the city builds its new facility next to the VCS plant some time in the next five years.

Scheidig noted that the decision seems to kill the phrase: "this city council can't bind future city councils" and replaces it with "the dead hand of the past will rule the future." However, it is possible to write annexation agreements (something the city doesn't need to do anymore) and other contracts with developers in such a way that the city can maneuver easily, said Scheidig.

"My experience in any contract that goes beyond one city council term is to see that there is flexibility for the future. I'm disappointed my predecessor (the city attorney in 1963) didn't do that," said Scheidig.

Sidewalk confrontation due

LIVERMORE — Ten property owners who have violated a little-publicized state law by failing to maintain the sidewalks on their property will be given one last chance to state their case at a public hearing before the City Council Monday night.

Duane Huber of the Livermore Public Works Department explained that California State law requires property holders to be responsible for the maintenance of sidewalks in the public right-of-way. Different municipalities enforce that law differently, but Livermore requires that property holders repair the sidewalks at their own expense. If the owner fails to comply upon notification, the city hires a contractor to make the repairs and sends the property owner the bill.

Huber stressed that such action is taken only in extreme cases. Most property holders comply after they have been notified that their sidewalk poses a public hazard.

But at least ten property holders, half of whom own property on First Street, have had their sidewalk repaired by the city but have not reimbursed the city for the cost.

They may address the city council Monday night to plead their cases, but the council is likely to uphold the Street Superintendent's recommendation that a lien be placed upon the property until the debt is paid, a practice permitted by law.

Sidewalks are installed by developers when the houses are built, but they must conform to city specifications. The city retains an easement on the sidewalks in case it should be necessary for the city to have access to them. An inspector checks out the cementwork to make sure the sidewalk has been properly installed.

Periodically the Public Works Department inspects city streets to be sure that sidewalks in the public right-of-way are properly maintained.

If a sidewalk is in violation, the property owner is notified and provided with a procedure chart for rectifying the problem. The city also furnishes the property holder with a list of local contractors and repair criteria.

If no action is taken four to five weeks after a second notification the city solicits bids to have a contractor perform the work.

The property owner is notified that the work will be done. A bill for the work is submitted to the city clerk who places the matter before the council. The council then must give the Superintendent of Streets permission to file notice of lien against the property in cases where the property owner has not already paid the bill.

That action is infrequent and is taken as a last resort. The council has not considered such action since a year ago, Huber noted.

Fair board may set its game plan Tuesday

Courses of action in the wake of the financially-disastrous 1976 Alameda County Fair may be forthcoming when County Fair Association directors meet Tuesday night.

Statistical data reviewed by the board last month gave evidence of the losses incurred as the result of no horse racing and daily picketing of entrances to the Fairgrounds by Service Employees International Union members.

The Fair Association estimates it loss in revenues (compared with 1975) from grounds, grandstand and reserved race seating, programs and parking as being $403,072.

Adding grandstand and parimutuel payroll and the projected purse schedule, the amount comes to nearly $1.5 million dollars.

Total attendance count for the 15 days this year was 221,873. 1975 proved a record year with 433,381 being counted through the gates for the same period of time.

Among those other entities hurtling from the lack of racing is the City of Pleasanton. Assistant to City Manager Jim Walker estimates the city will lose $8,500, the money raised by a city tax on grandstand admissions. The tax is in lieu of a business license tax on concessions at the Fair.

The monies help offset the cost of police overtime during the two-week Fair.

Walker said it won't affect the city budget in the sense of having to raise taxes to make up for it. "We might get less than anticipated next year on business licenses, but perhaps more on sales tax."

Prime question for Fair directors to resolve is whether to consider any legal action. John Cantwell, legal counsel for the Fair prior to and during injunction hearings, is known to be available should the directors decide on any legal action.

However, Lee Hall, Fair secretary-manager, said discussions Tuesday night would center on Fair operations during the period of June 27 to July 11 with emphasis on income versus expenses.

A meeting of the board's legal committee will be scheduled for some future time.

Losses incurred are expected to be felt in the capital improvements program of the Fair.

A revised five-year construction program issued in May included the following projects for the 1976-77 year: Amador Pavilion, Phase II of theatre walk and park area (including fountain, tower and paving of walkways), landscaping and planting of grounds, demolition of existing livestock barns, new Gate C and lighting of Gate C area, complete lighting of parking areas 6, 7 and 9, and lawn area of Area B, barbecue and picnic areas.

The Amador Pavilion project has an estimated cost of $550,000.

YMCA move in a year

PLEASANTON — Peters Avenue will grow by another block in the summer of 1978 and the YMCA will be moving out of its present quarters on Rose avenue next summer, according to Director of Engineering Services Don Sooby.

The YMCA occupies the former St. Augustine's Catholic Church rectory on Rose Avenue and subleases rooms there to the junior soccer program and the local volunteer bureau.

The city will allow some grace time for the YMCA to find other quarters and the "Y" already has opened talks about the Possibility of moving to Lynwood Methodist Church's building on Black Avenue.

Nothing is firm up between the "Y" and the Methodist Church, but the church facility looks desirable as space for the many "Y" activities, according to YMCA director Dick Babington.

However, Babington is open to suggestions about where the "Y" might locate. Since the move is not scheduled till next June, he will have a lot of time to mull over the alternatives.

Sooby hopes that the old house now on the parcel will be saved. Some inquiries already have been made about the house which is believed to date back prior to the turn of the century.

"It's preferable from my point of view if someone can buy, move and renovate the house," said Sooby. "It may take extra time, but that's all right."

"With the city owning the house, we'll take every effort to see that it is Preserved. The city has no plans right now for creating another Century House, but we would like to see a private party move and restore it."

Removal of the house will make way for a block of Peters Avenue between Division Street and Rose

Time to talk preservation — Apperson

PLEASANTON — A citizens committee should be formed solely for the purpose of public debate on the issue of future historical preservation in the city, according to local historian Bill Apperson.

Apperson, a spokesperson for the Amador - Livermore Historical Society, said he noted comments by council members in a recent issue of The Times and he thinks that now is the time to get public discussion going on the historical building question.

If the city waits too long, it could find itself in a crisis situation and it should plan ahead just as it does on other issues, said Apperson.

The city already has an historical preservation ordinance, but not many know what it says and the five member committee which is required to put the ordinance in effect has not been appointed. The ordinance was adopted in 1972.

Apperson thinks the city should approach the question slowly, but firmly, by creating a citizens' committee which will learn public sentiment on the issue and create guidelines for historical preserva-

Croce, Petersdorf, top earners

Livermore's Leo Croce and Allan Petersdorf, superintendent of the San Ramon Valley Unified School District, are the highest paid administrators in valley school districts, a ranking they retain from 1975-76.

Pending an upward adjustment for 1976-77 by the Livermore Valley Unified board, Croce will make $37,310.

Salaries for San Ramon administrators have not been adjusted as yet, Petersdorf earning $36,000 as he did in 1975-76.

Next in order among valley superintendents are Dr. Bruce Newlin of the Amador-Pleasanton school districts, with a present salary of $35,000, but due to be adjusted upward, and Dr. Donald Williams, Murray School District superintendent, who received a 3 per cent raise to $33,900.

Croce, who came to the Livermore district on July 1, 1973, is at the top of an administrative alignment that has a separate salary schedule for assistant superintendents and directors.

Livermore's unified district has two assistant superintendents, Dr. Justin Bardellini in charge of educational services and earning $32,111 (plus $400 for possessing a doctorate), and Bruce Jameson, responsible for business services and also receiving $32,111.

The district has a director of elementary education, John Waggoner, earning $30,319, and a director of secondary education, Lee Thompson, receiving $28,527. All of the Livermore salaries are those received during 1975-76, the board of trustees having made no adjustments to date for 1976-77.

San Ramon recently underwent an administrative reorganization with new job titles adopted as of July 12.

The district had one assistant superintendent in 75-76, that being Dr. James Smith who was assistant for instructional services.

Under terms of the reorganization, Smith is now assistant for planning and development, with a salary of $30,100.

William Crozier, formerly an assistant superintendent in the Murray district, is now assistant superintendent for personnel services with an annual salary of $28,350. He was director of personnel in 1975-76.

The other new assistant superintendent is Dr. James Solberg, with responsibility for administration and evaluation. He was director of secondary education last year and received $28,350.

The San Ramon board has yet to act on administrative raises for 1976-77.

Administrative organization for the Amador-Pleasanton school districts is unchanged, though raises for 1976-77 have not been finalized.

Newlin Newlin made $35,000 for 1975-76, his second with the district since coming to Pleasanton from Lancaster.

The districts have three assistant superintendents with the following responsibilities and salaries: Doug Rose, business services, $29,539; Carl Krause, personnel, $29,169; and Neil Sweeney, instructional services, $29,169.

All Murray district administrators received 3 per cent increases in salary for 1976-77. Williams goes from $33,000 to $33,900 and is senior superintendent in terms of service among valley leaders.

Assistant Superintendent Heinz Gewing was elevated to $28,000 and business manager Phil Chubb to $27,900.

Valley school district administrative salaries compare favorably with districts of similar size in other suburban areas.

On the whole, the salaries of school superintendents are above those of city managers and, in the case of Valley Community Services District, the general manager. Year-old salary figures for city staff leaders in Livermore, Pleasanton and Dublin were $35,004, $28,860 and $2,564 (a month), respectively.

Highest paid city manager in Southern Alameda County is San Leandro's with an annual rate of just over $47,000.

A final test that's fun

SAN RAMON — Handicapped students showed off a summer's worth of training at a "Swim Carnival" held last Friday. The unique summer program was sponsored by the Valley Community Services District (VCS).

Each child exhibited his or her skill in events such as the crawl, breast stroke, bat the balloon and free style. The California High School pool was the site.

All of the swimmers received a medal. Even Judy Giles, director of the swim program for the handicapped, was given a special award from the Ellis Highlands school. The hand designed card was presented in appreciation for all she and her volunteers had done.

Although there were over 40 students enrolled in the class not all of them were able to participate in the carnival. The weather was too cool. Officials said that even though the pool water was warm enough the exposure to cold air would not be good for some of the children.

Giles said, "An indoor pool would have been ideal today but there just isn't one available."

When asked about a follow-up program, Giles said, "There won't be one like this until next summer. And hopefully handicapped adults will also join us then." She went on to say, "We feel it is important for these people to learn water safety but even more importantly we want them to learn to enjoy themselves in the water."

Giles also mentioned there were Olympics available for the handicapped. Undoubtedly some of the children who were in the "Swim Carnival" will be entering and winning medals.

Toffer checks out the water temperature before taking a dip.

Riebli gets Lone Star Promotion

PLEASANTON — Joe Riebli has been promoted to superintendent of Lone Star's Kerlinger plant in Tracy. He was assistant superintendent at the Pleasanton facility.

Riebli will be replacing Francis Nevis who retired July 30 after a 30-year career with the company.

At the presnet time Riebli and his family are residents of Sunol. Nevis resides in Tracy but is a native of Pleasanton.

Camp Parks bustling with troops

PLEASANTON — More than 300 U.S. Army Reserve and National Guard personnel from 15 western states have descended on Camp Parks to take part in specialized basic training.

Lt. Col. Roger H. Tam, base commander, said that the program is the first such effort to train reserve and guard personnel on a large scale.

In the first of two summer sessions each lasting two weeks, 305 young persons, including 75 women, arrived at Camp Parks to begin classes, lectures and demonstrations in their particular fields. Approximately 200 reserve and guard personnel are expected at the second session beginning tomorrow.

Training focuses on a wide variety of skills, including communications personnel, radar operators, personnel records specialists, supply technicians, teletype operators, and cooks, both in cooking skills and administrative capacities.

Camp Parks maintains a year-round staff of about 50 persons, but is experiencing no difficulty with the influx of newcomers. Two days a month, 350 personnel from the 91st U.S. Army Maneuver Training Command take part in maneuvers at the inactive military base.

Senior command headquarters for the operation is the 6th U.S. Army unit at the Presidio in San Francisco, who gave responsibility for the program to the U.S. Army Reserve School in San Jose.

The "students" are mostly young privates, corporals, or junior sergeants, learning skills in their separate fields in a more personal manner than can be taught in full-size units.

Instructors numbering 150 were also recruited from the 15 western states. They will return to their regular units after completion of the four-week training period.

Jobs are being taught according to the needs of each base. If five cooks are needed at an army post in Seattle, then five inexperienced personnel from that base are assigned to attend cooking classes.

Dick Babington, YMCA director in Pleasanton, stands before the current quarters which the "Y" will have to vacate next year. The city council will be asked tomorrow night to authorize purchase of the site for $60,000 to make way for construction of Peters Avenue by the summer of 1978. The "Y" has known about the move for some time and has begun to look in earnest for new quarters tion which are liveable for all.

"Reach out into the community, find people who are capable in the field (of preservation). I'm sure they are out there somewhere and are willing to come forward."

The city council must consider many different issues and can't be expected to have expertise in the field of architecture and history, said Apperson. This citizens committee could provide it.

Apperson liked Mayor Robert Philcox's comments in The Times which pointed up the necessity to learn the business community's sentiments on preservation of old buildings.

Like Philcox, Apperson hopes that any future historical preservation policy of the city would insure all of the basic rights of the property owner.

"We must have a historical ordinance, but we can't lock it. The ordinance must be viable, one that all can live with," he said.

"If there is sale of property involved, it has to be reasonable. We would not want to inversely condemn the property," said Apperson.

The thrust of the current ordinance appears to be such that the city has a short period of time to speak up for an old building or site before it is demolished or transformed, and if the city doesn't want it, doesn't find it of historical significance, or doesn't have the money to buy it, the property owner proceeds to do as he or she originally intended.

That approach sounds reasonable to Apperson, though more community discussion of it is needed, he said. He noted that if people want a property enough, they will find a way to pay for it.

He gave a pat on the back to Bert and Connie Duke of Livermore who have moved an old house out of destruction's way to a site on College and L Streets. "It meets the needs of restoration and can be used through the year 2000," said Apperson.

The first block of Peters Avenue from St. Mary to Division streets brought improved traffic circulation and the parking lot there is being used fully because La Rochelle Restaurant has opened, said Sooby.

Ma Bell minimizing East Avenue crunch

LIVERMORE — Pacific Telephone Company will try to minimize disruption of traffic on East Avenue when it begins work next month on installation of new telephone switching equipment to improve phone service for Lawrence Livermore Laboratory and Sandia Laboratory.

In order to keep up with the communications needs of the laboratory, LLL has been negotiating for three years to have an electronic switching system (ESS) installed at the lab.

In order to meet that request, Pacific Telephone will install new cable underground from its central switching station at Second Street and McCloud along the length of East Avenue to the laboratory.

A new conduit for the cable must be dug along that route. Pacific Telephone Company Livermore Manager Dick Pipenburg said Friday that the phone company will attempt to minimize traffic interruption by working on small sections of the route at one time, closing the trench behind them as they progress down East Avenue.

In this way, only a portion of that major artery will be affected by the underground work.

Pipenburg said the conduit construction will begin in the early part of September and will be completed in late October.

The lab telephone system currently operates on a step-by-step switching system. The ESS is the most modern form of switching equipment and provides the user with as many as 40 additional special functions.

The ESS could eventually become part of an improved communication system for the entire Livermore community. Such a switching system is being installed throughout the country as other equipment becomes obsolete.

But Pipenburg said there are no immediate plans to serve the rest of the Livermore community by ESS. He stressed that the Livermore switching system now in use in Livermore and Pleasanton is relatively new and is a "very good system."

The new switching system will be used by Sandia Laboratories as well as LLL.

Pipenburg confirmed that LLL is "by far and away the largest phone customer in Livermore." LLL's telecommunication manager Lee Overen noted that each of LLL's six operators handles an average of 105 to 110 calls per hour. That figure does not include local calls placed directly on the federal government's telecommunications system that handles about half of all calls placed at the lab.

New equipment is needed, Overen explained, to keep up with the lab's rapid growth. LLL recently topped the 6,000-employee mark, and is expected to add still more personnel.

The present switching system, he said, is obsolete. Equipment required to expand the system is often difficult to obtain, and adding more lines necessitates additional storage space.

"The kind of work that is done here requires fast, accurate and reliable communications systems," Overen said.

ESS fits that description. It uses a computer memory program and is designed to handle "almost an unlimited number of lines," he said.

The lab first recognized its need for an improved switching system about three years ago and has been negotiating with the phone company since that time to make the ESS installation a reality.

Pacific Telephone will make a considerable investment in the new equipment. The lab will be charged in a manner similar to residential customers: LLL will pay monthly rates as set by tariff, plus an installation fee.

It will be more than a year before LLL calls will be handled by ESS. The first step will be to trench East Avenue to build the conduits to carry the cable.

Then ESS will be installed in the phone company's central Livermore office.

New equipment will then be brought on-site to LLL, installed, inspected, and programmed for necessary functions.

Overen said LLL will not make use of ESS until a year from October or November. But once the new system comes on line, Overen predicted it "will give us real flexibility to meet the needs of the laboratory."

Haircutting benefit

All heads will turn your way twice when you participate in the Sunday, Aug. 15 Hair Style-a-thon. Once to admire your new hair style and second to thank you for participating in the event.

The proceeds raised during the day at participating shops will benefit St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital.

The largest childhood cancer research and treatment center in the world became twice as large, and much more efficient, late in 1975 when a seven-story, $10½ million, addition to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital opened.

An important feature of the patient-care section of the new building is a complex method of preventing the spread of germs.

The new building also houses, in enlarged and improved facilities, such important basic research division as pharmacology, clinical therapeutics, infectious diseases, immunology, hematology and pathology.

A persistent, agonizing, problem faced by doctors at St. Jude and everywhere chemotherapy is used to fight cancer is the heavy dosages of chemicals needed to combat cancer often suppress the patient's natural immunity to infection.

Thus, a cancer patient who may be well on the way to defeating his vicious disease can die from an infection which the normal person would quickly throw off.

An important progress in this area has been achieved. A team of St. Jude Children's Research Hospital doctors under Dr. Walter T. Hughes has developed an antibiotic which effectively prevents Pneumocystis carinii—an infectious protozoan that causes a diffuse and often fatal pneumonia in patients with suppressed immune responses. It is a major cause of death among recovering leukemia patients.

Eventually doctors everywhere will be using this added knowledge to prevent infection from this form of pneumonia. That makes this dedicated group's achievements most rewarding to all. Every contributor to the hospital's work deserves to share this happy feeling.

Participating shops in the valley are now taking appointments for hair styling on that day and may be reached by calling, Tony's Hair Fashions in Pleasanton, 462-3200; Vaughn's of Dublin, 828-9947 and Pleasanton Valley Barber Shop, 856-9835. Stylists consisting of men and women, will handle both men and women during the marathon session.

Further information on the style-a-thon may be directed to Tony's Hair Fashions.

Professional hands will be styling hair for 24 hours during the Aug. 15 "Style-a-thon" being held throughout the valley. Shown here are stylists from Tony's Hair Fashions in Pleasanton working on the Mayor of Pleasanton, Bob Philcox, Dan Conner, ex-Raider Football Player and Merle Telford, president of the Pleasanton Chamber of Commerce. Approval for well

Lena Schenone and the Hershey Oil Corporation were granted a conditional use permit for an exploratory oil and gas well on Patterson Pass Road near Greenville Road by Alameda County Zoning Administrator Richard Flynn last week.

The landowner and the oil company wanted a permit for production, too, but Flynn decided it will be better to obtain information from the exploratory drilling to see what production facilities might be needed.

Manuel and Elenor Reis's application to replot two parcels for two building sites was continued by Flynn because the planning commission is considering an amendment to the ordinance dealing with residential lots in agricultural zones.

City received plans for vehicle lot construction

PLEASANTON — A story in The Times Friday inadvertently omitted an important reply from city employee Mike Stanley in the discussion about resident Teri Jordan's accusations that the city staff didn't follow good procedures over the construction of a recreational vehicle lot.

Jordan had said that a stop work order was issued by the city, but construction of the lot continued anyway.

Stanley explained to The Times that only two things were needed for the proper construction of the yard: posting of construction plans approved by the city and acquisition of an electrical permit for an electrical wire to be used at the site.

Stanley issued the stop work order when he saw that no plans were posted at the site. The contractor halted work, came into City Hall, showed copies of the plans and work was allowed to proceed, said Stanley.

An electrical conduit was installed before the contractor secured an electrical permit, but that is all right, said Stanley. The electrical wire was not pulled through the conduit at the time. When it was pulled through the conduit, the permit had been secured.

Del Valle's neighbors don't always show up

LIVERMORE — More people from Fremont and San Jose visit nearby Del Valle Regional Park than from Pleasanton, Dublin or San Ramon.

Livermore residents lead the parade into the big park, which features boating, swimming, camping and hiking. Although Livermore is not part of the East Bay Regional Park District, some 774 Livermore residents trooped out to the recreation area at the south end of Livermore during the past four months.

One quarter of the park visitors, 527 of them, were Fremont residents who pay EBRPD taxes (which did not absolve them from paying the $1.50 admission fee.) Next were 339 San Jose residents, residing outside the district in Santa Clara County.

After that came Pleasanton with 245 visitors and Hayward with 238. Both cities are within the district. The only holdouts besides Livermore are several areas in eastern Contra Costa County.

In all, some 55.7 per cent of Del Valle's visitors came from within the two-county park district.

That's show biz

Zany originality is the ingredient which vaudeville acts bring to the Pleasanton Playhouse production of "George M" coming to the Alameda County Fairgrounds Amphitheater Aug. 13-14, 19-21. The roller skating violinist is Florence Chato who joins a host of talented players in the lively musical about George M. Cohan. Tickets at $3 for adults and $2 for students, seniors and groups are available through the Pleasanton Recreation Department at 846-3202, Ext. 215. A champagne preview night Aug. 13 is $5 per person.

Downtown Livermore—old memories remain

Imposing Dutch building, erected in the last century at the corner of First and South Livermore, gave way to the stone structure now used as City Hall(right).

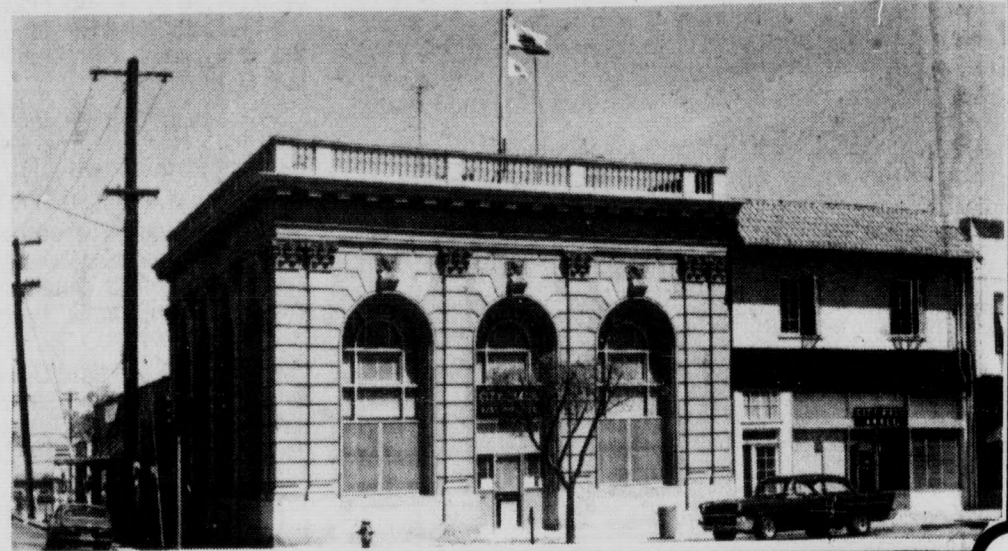

They called it Lizzie Street (now South Livermore Ave.); and the building that was once a bank now houses City Hall's annex.

Anyone remember the Carnegie Library before it became hidden in trees?

Sky Masterson (Steve Seldon) makes arrangements for the big crap game for his street buddies.

It's 'Guys and Dolls'

"If you get them inspired, they'll give you absolutely everything they've got," says Valerie Doggett of the 40 to 50 young people of high school and college age who have spent a summer working toward opening night of "Guys and Dolls" this Wednesday, Aug. 11 at the Granada High Little Theater.

For a second summer the student-run Livermore Musical Theater has been underwritten by the Livermore Cultural Arts Council and the Livermore recreation department. The young company of players and crew has proven worthy of the trust of school officials who allowed them use of the Granada High facilities this year.

"Last year we paid back all our loans, and made a big profit of $30," laughs Valerie who is the show's producer. Her brother, Bill, is musical director. Don Springer and Robin Tinder team up for the choreography, with Sue Cupps as stage director. In lead roles are Kathleen Traxler, Steve Seldon, Kellie George, Tom Quinonas and Tony Barton.

"A super special thanks to the teachers who have given us lots of encouragement — Vicki Stadelhof and Jim Heiner of Livermore High, Linda Williams and Jim Brockman of Granada High," says Valerie. "They taught us everything we know. The show's going to be great."

Tickets for 8:15 p.m. performances Aug. 11, 12, 13 and 14 are sold at the door for only $1.50 for adults and $1 for students.

"Leave your TV sets for a night," exclaims Valerie. "It's cheaper and cleaner than the movies and we've worked so hard."

Hot box girls (Valerie Doggett and Lynne Miller) chime in with 'Bushel and a Peck.'

Liver Lips Louie (Mitch Myers) and his 'doll' (Gael Schaefer) amuse themselves pretending to be tourists seeing Broadway for the first time.

Sports biz

Have you noticed how most metropolitan newspapers have their "sports pages" closely followed by the "business and finance pages"? The San Francisco Examiner has a bold SPORTS/BUSINESS logo on the cover page of that section which makes it look like we're being blessed with an in-depth report on the business of sports.

Which is precisely what we need, but are not about to get.

At least not within the existing newspaper buddy system that assigns to the sporting world a very special kind of treatment, a sort of "we love you too" coverage that makes it difficult to tell the sports reporter from the sports participant. Often there isn't any.

This is not one of your "Let's de-emphasize athletics in America" campaigns. I love the Olympics right along with the rest of you. But I particularly appreciated the revelations of one billion, three hundred million dollars spent to prepare for and stage those games. "It was good for the youth of the nation," said the free-spending mayor of Montreal, proudly.

That sounds like the same speech we get when they dedicate an expensive new sports park. "Keeps the kids off the street" sort of thing. And when it's a $50 million stadium they are launching, the pitch is "A wonderful boon to the local economy, not to mention our image."

All of which may be true. But what is also becoming clear is the pattern which allows a New York millionaire like Horace Stoneham to operate a losing proposition like the SF Giants for almost 20 years, while convincing the City and County of SF to build him a fine new stadium, later expanded, and then — after "losing several millions" of dollars — sell that franchise for $12 million or so to a couple of other millionaires who can somehow see "a bright and profitable future for this team in San Francisco."

How can they do it? By what magic does a ball club that has never really justified the year-round seating capacity of the old Seals Stadium, warrant all this heavy investment in new facilities and new ownership?

There is some evidence that the answer is found in "depreciation" and "losses carried forward" and a lot of other involved things that have to do with the taxes that millionaires pay. Or don't pay, once they get their hands on a major sports franchise. And therein rests the REAL story of big time football, baseball and all the rest.

In fairness, it is also largely the same story for opera houses and "theatres of the art" wherein a few of us get to enjoy "cultural events" in surroundings made comfortable, and even possible, by some agency's tax-dodging efforts.

The point in all this is that there are few things in this nation larger than a single family dwelling that do not enjoy some kind of "special tax writeoff," or even "public subsidy." It means that government, and therefore the taxpaying public, is very much into big time sports, entertainment etc. etc. Is that bad? I honestly don't know. But it makes a person wonder — in this land of free enterprise and total capitalism — just what kind of scene it would be if all things of commercial value or private profit were made to pay their own way, period.

We might see baseball returning to the sand lots and "the star system" reduced to the original celestial version.

And "the Sports Pages" would be limited to five columns of box scores, carried at the back of the Financial Section.

Round the town

"It's right there, doctor ... right in the middle of the back ... a little higher ... OUCH! You found it!" Problems with the back are not new. Not for me, not for thee.

"It's the price we pay for walking upright," the doctor advises me. And he isn't the type to make with the funnies. He has the look of Ernie Kovacs, but without the jokes.

"It's not really your leg that's hurting," he says. "The spine sends messages from here (Ouch!) down through the buttocks and on down here ... and you think your leg is hurting when the pain really starts in the back."

He sounds very authoritative. This boy is well read, I am convinced. A pain in the leg does not dissuade him from his appointed rounds, up and down the spine.

"You might have damaged the back at some time ... or could be just a pinched nerve ... or ..." The Ernie Kovacs eyebrows bristle ominously. It is the "or ..." that I don't like.

"We never quite know what causes these things," he says, gently changing the thrust. "Could even be the shoes you're wearing ... it's not a good idea to be making drastic changes in the heel height, particularly for a man of your age ..."

I want to tell him that it is not "a man of my age" who is making these changes. The shoe manufacturers give us no choice. The height of the heel goes up in direct proportion to the price. They must think we males are all bent upon becoming Mexican hat dancers, or whatever.

Does he recommend new shoes? Is surgery inevitable? Or worse, will I have to miss the Saturday golf match with the boys?

"I want you to see a specialist," is his only response. "These things can get a little involved for an internist." Yes, and even more so for a pessimist. A lifetime spent in avoiding any serious business with doctors, particularly those with knives, may now go down in defeat.

"Sometimes these things will work themselves out, but then again sometimes you have to learn to live with them ... particularly when the bones get a little older ..."

I wish he would stop stressing the age bit. I just had my 29th birthday the other day, or so it seems. The vintage years are still ahead, according to a recent article in Reader's Digest. "You are only as young as you feel," sort of thing. Right now, confronted by Dr. Ernie Kovacs, I am feeling close to 90.

"Close your eyes and tell me where you can feel this sharp thing," he announces. I can feel it all over. For which he says "Fine, fine." I suppose that is good news, for a guy who will never see 29 again.

"I was thinking of buying a new pair of shoes," I advise Dr. Kovacs. In truth, the little lady has been after me for months to get re-shod. It is a source of some marital unrest.

But doctor is not in the business of counseling his patients on proper footwear. "Some of those heels ARE getting awfully high," is his only consolation. We cannot agree on the proper heel height for shoes that will keep the spine from doing whatever it is doing, which sends a message through the buttocks, down to the leg. Which hurts like blazes.

"I will make an appointment for you with this specialist," he advises me. One cannot approach a specialist without the prior consent of the internist. It is part of the medical code.

"He will let me know his findings, and together we will determine your next move." They will get together, the internist and the specialist, and they will decide my future. To die or not to die. To cut or not to cut. Do I get new shoes this term, or is it back to cardboard cutouts?

"These pills should ease that muscle tightness a little," he says, easing me out of his office. "Take two four times a day, unless they make you sick to your stomach, in which case take just one, four times a day."

The back problem is not eased without a price. Like throwing up after taking two of the green pills. The healing arts shape up as a multiple choice question "Do you want a pain in the back, which really shows up in your leg, or do you prefer to have a stomach that doesn't throw up?" Choose one.

What I really need is a new body. One that hasn't developed all these funny little aches. With new legs that lead down to a new pair of shoes, stylish high heels, making me feel 29, again.

"Just take it easy and we'll hope for the best," Dr. Kovacs is saying as he offers a parting handshake.

"Would you like to settle up your account now sir?" the efficient girl behind the desk asks. I suspect she knows something about bad backs, for those past 29. Get the cash while they're still moving around. That's also part of the code.

"Thank you, and have a nice day," Ms. Efficient says.

I observe she is wearing sandals, with very low heels ... I also observe that her back and legs appear in good shape, very good indeed.

Which goes to show I'm not all that ancient.

The week in retrospect The 'innocents'

The Citizens Advisory Committee of the Murray School District has been cast into the role of "innocents in a storm."

Organized as volunteer representatives of their respective schools, the group has been taking some unfair raps of late, though the combined affect is certain not to leave any individual with an inferiority complex.

The committee was originally setup as a fact-finding group for housing of seventh and eighth graders in the Murray district. As the only member of the news media who has been to most of the panel's meetings, I have found them to be diligent and fair-minded with no "axes" surfacing.

A couple of actions taken by the group could be questioned, though. Namely, taking an informal poll on converting a school to seventh-eighth grade use and concentration on Dublin School, and Frederiksen, as prime choices for conversion. This, though a survey of district parents is still being processed.

The results of this survey should be ready for the next CAC meeting on Sept. 1 at 7:30 p.m. (at Frederiksen).

Should the response (some 3,500 forms were sent out) go heavily in favor of NOT converting any Murray school to solely seventh-eighth grade use, the committee may find itself in a difficult position — as far as recommendations to the board of trustees. The board will make the final decision and does not necessarily have to go along with what the CAC recommends.

Thus, the "buck" will stop initially with the CAC — they're the ones on the spot.

And it would appear hand-handed if the board dismissed the CAC recommendations and came to totally different courses of action.

So it is important, in the meetings they have remaining, that all facets of the original charge are discussed and evaluated with as many district residents present as possible. This means not only the Residents-In-Action (made up of Dublin School area parents) but interested citizens from ALL other school areas.

As many opinions as possible must be heard before a final preferred course of action is passed on to the Murray board.

The action should be one that all concerned can live with not just for two or three years but at least into the 1980s.

Demographic studies done by Allan Richards (for a maximum fee of $500) indicate the district will continue to lose enrollment into the 1980s. As stated in this column several weeks ago, it is quite possible the Murray board will be faced with the prospect of closing a school in another couple of years.

Unless the downward enrollment spiral is checked by a vast number of new housing starts.

The board must weigh Richards' findings with the CAC recommendations and then layout a specific course of action — and be certain it is communicated to every interested citizen in the district.

Murray has problems peculiar only to itself, over and above the fiscal woes shared by so many other California districts.

Not the least of these is the fact that two of the district schools are "south of 580" and bursting with enrollment while the remainder are in Dublin and in various shapes enrollment-wise.

Factionalism cannot be allowed to cloud the minds of those making recommendations or decisions.

Those bad bod's

Crackerbarrel diplomacy in dealing with the city's top industries over their sewer discharges may have been fine in the past when Pleasanton was a small town, but the place is a full-fledged city now. Its civic procedures ought to reflect that fact.

The City Manager and his assistant thinks that the Cheese Factory, here since 1920, doesn't have to be covered by the sewer discharge permits required by a 1966 ordinance. That's ironic, coming as it does from a city staff whose own sewer discharges from the Sunol Boulevard Treatment Plant have been governed by the Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board. That plant has been in existence longer than the Cheese Factory, but that didn't stop the BRWQCB from requiring a discharge permit from the city.

The water quality board gave the city a reasonable time to clean up the odor problem at the Sunol Plant. The city should give the Cheese Factory a reasonable period to clean up its problem with the Biochemical Oxygen Demand (BOD) discharges into the city's sewer plant. If the Cheese Factory leaves town, it would be missed greatly. But there should be a reasonable way it can meet standards. The important thing is that it should not be allowed by the city staff to evade the discharge standards. The argument that the Cheese Factory should be "grandfathered in" because it was here before the discharge permit ordinance is a poor argument.

It's interesting that the 1966 ordinance has been on the books for the past 10 years, but never enforced against the Cheese Factory. No one on the city staff thought enough of the problem to order a study done. The lament always was that the city didn't have enough "facts and figures" to back up the contention that the Cheese Factory was contributing too much BOD to the sewer plant. It took a federal grant requirement for sewer plant expansion to move the city into a position where it finally authorized the study.

That brings up a series of deja vu for this writer — the federal government having to step in down South for school integration, the federal government having to step in to regulate growth in the valley because of the serious air pollution problem. Yes, the unpleasant tasks never seem to get accomplished at the local level; the more enlightened level of government has to move in and do it.

grams to amuse the adults. Outside of all this, I ask you what we have.

At least when I lived in a larger city all I needed was to raise the local bus fare, so that on weekends I could go to lots of shopping complexes and recreation areas. If I could raise the money, at least in larger cities I could get to sporting events and rock concerts, etc. Here in this wilderness you have to be back by a certain hour at night because A.C. and Greyhound doesn't run out here after certain hours.

Out here, you also have to have quite a bit of money to get to half of these "out of town" events because by the time you raise money for A.C. or Greyhound fare, the Bart transfer fare your event money, etc. you are lucky if you can do this once every six months.

Guess the answer to living out here is that your family has to have a lot of money. To keep from going stir crazy. I guess I'll have to move back to a bigger city.

"A disgusted teenager"
Livermore

when he directed our attention to the principle, Salus Populi Suprema Lux Properly translated, that phrase means, "The safety of the people is the supreme law."

Justice Elkington went on to say, "This time honored truism of our law expresses the basis upon which all civilized, and even primitive, governments are necessarily founded." He noted the principle was averted to in the Declaration of Independence as the Creator's endowment of the unalienable right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

The precept was traced by Justice Elkington to have been carried into the Preamble of the Constitution by its statement of purpose to establish justice and promote the general welfare. He found it to have been reiterated by the United States Supreme Court when it declared that government owes a duty to the people... and to maintain peace and order and to assure the just enforcement of law.

He recognized all of the foregoing to have created a right of personal security which is natural, inherent and inalienable.

Clearly, California prosecutors must begin to provide the leadership necessary to restore meaning to this natural, inherent and inalienable right of the people to personal security. Only by well organized and sustained efforts can this be done.

Now is the time to heed Leon Jaworski's call for effectiveness as well as fairness in criminal justice. His 1968 prognosis that, "fairness without effectiveness will bring woes to our criminal justice system and ills to our society," has proven painfully accurate. His appeal for "bold bench and a bold bar" to play a vital role in a renaissance of justice and order can no longer be safely ignored.

In an effort to assist California prosecutors to give substance to the comments of Justice Elkington and Mr. Jaworski, this Association will: (1) soon occupy permanent offices, hopefully just across the street from the capitol; (2) implement a reorganization plan to promote effectiveness, stability and continuity; (3) achieve a sound and independent funding base; (4) develop and provide significant statewide educational programs and publications services; and (5) render meaningful legislative and court information services.

More specific details about the new offices, fresh faces and innovative programs will come in the next few months.

Letter to the editor:
I would like to reply to a newspaper article on August 2nd entitled "Lack of guidance blamed for kids boredom."

For over five years, I have been hearing that there's lots to do in Livermore and for five years I've been trying to get an answer as to what these things are. Nobody ever seems to be able to tell you. The most anybody can mention is that the parks dept. offers art programs and other things where you could pay a fee and go for a few weeks.

From time to time they offer bus trips that are limited to a certain amount of kids, where again you pay a certain fee and go somewhere. If your lucky enough to be born to a family with lots of property and money, you could own your own horse etc. and please note you need money to keep up with the feed, vet bills, and equipment. Some kids occupy themselves with this.

I guess we should mention all the youth sports programs which are rapidly becoming nothing but pro-

Victims

(The following report was authored by George Nicholson, former senior trial deputy in the Alameda County District Attorney's office and resident of Dublin. Nicholson was recently appointed executive director of the California District Attorney's Association with offices in Sacramento.)

Long ago, Solon declared there would be no justice until those uninjured by crime became as indignant as those who are.

Those prophetic words have never been more relevant than today. While crime rates skyrocket, particularly those cataloging violence, a pervasive inertia seems to inhibit legislative and judicial efforts to diminish the horrors of lawlessness.

Recently and for the first time in more than a decade, this problem was placed in realistic perspective. In January, Justice Norman Elkington reminded us of the basic cornerstone of society

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Conditions are somewhat uncertain for you today. Don't take on more than you can comfortably handle. It's not a day for new projects.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You have a tendency today to make changes at the wrong time. You'd be better off doing things the way you first intended.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Try not to bring up issues that you know get a friend riled up. He may really blow his cool today.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Relax. Enjoy yourself today. Try not to involve yourself with business matters. You'll handle them better early in the week.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You could make things more difficult than they need be today by failing to be cooperative. It won't hurt to make a few concessions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Tasks that you start late in the day are likely to be done in a slipshod manner. They won't measure up to your high standards.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Partners and associates will play important roles in your affairs this year. Be sure any good thing today or you will be painfully reminded of your overindulgence tomorrow.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Jumping to conclusions today could provoke a problem with a friend. Don't make up your mind before the jury comes in.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Although no ill will is intended, you sometimes hurt others with your blunt comments. Be careful. You could do so again today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you're careless today you may lose something of value. Don't leave things lying around to tempt one with sticky fingers.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Someone whom you're closely involved with could be quite difficult to get along with today. Be extra tactful.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Acting without thinking could cause you some severe woes today. Don't make waves for yourself that could be avoided.

Elbert bats, throws PN to 3rd place

CAMPBELL — Chris Elbert tossed a four-hitter for his second win of the tournament and scored the winning run with a bit of heads-up base running as Pleasanton National took third place in the Section 3 Little League play-offs, 3-2, over Saratoga at San Tomas School here yesterday.

Pleasanton was knocked out of contention for the championship, and still further levels of tournament play, by a fearsome onslaught by District 12 champ Campbell Friday that left the Nationals on the short end of a 17-0 score.

Elbert's heroic dash to the plate came in the seventh after the teams had matched each other in every inning to force extra frames.

With one out, the left-hander blooped a double down the left field line that fell between Saratoga shortstop Todd Rafalovich and left fielder Jeff Flores. He was still at second an out later when Dave Parker sent Rafalovich to the hole to field a grounder.

Todd, whose brother Tom got the loss, threw too high and too late to get Parker and when first baseman Matt Currie questioned the umpire's call, Elbert kept going around third and slid across with the decider.

Elbert, whose five-hitter helped Pleasanton to an 11-1 win over Capitola - Soquel Thursday, struck out seven and produced three hits to stand out for the Nationals.

But the entire Pleasanton team made quite an impression on tournament officials here as district administrator Joe Vitale made a special point of telling reporters, "Pleasanton was a group of true gentlemen. It was a pleasure to have them here."

Manager Bob Ferolito

was equally pleased with his team.

"After being tromped Friday, they held themselves together well. They're a proud bunch," he said. "I'm just glad they took (coach) Ray (Northam) and I along for the ride."

Although Saratoga held the lead in both the first and sixth innings, Pleasanton quickly retaliated each time.

In the top of the first, Chris Ihrig singled home starting pitcher Tim Cass to put Saratoga up, 1-0. But in the last half of the inning, Trip Gotelli scored after singles by Tom Northam and Elbert.

After a string of four scoreless innings, Saratoga came up with a potential winning run in the top of the sixth as Robert Wooley singled in lead-off batter Pat Kelihier.

But a walk to Parker and singles by David Blanchard and Gary Morgan loaded the bases for Gotelli, who pulled a single past first to plate Parker with the run that sent the game into overtime.

In the field yesterday, left fielder Mark Kammermeier made a good catch to rob Currie of a hit and Robert Nelson cut off a possible run with an alert throw to get Tim Runyard at third during the fifth inning.

Friday's debacle, which one Pleasanton player laughingly referred to as "a squeaker," got off on a near-tragic note and finished up little better for the Nationals.

Paul Sargis opened the slugfest with a lead-off home run for Campbell and after Bob Straight walked, Pleasanton starter Dave Ferguson was hit in the face by a line drive off the bat of right fielder Rich Alvarez.

Ferguson was taken to nearby Los Gatos Hospital and release, relatively intact, after little more than an hour.

But, Campbell, driven hard by manager Jack Zogg, teed off equally hard on each of Ferguson's eventual three replacements; scoring four times in the first and six times in the second. The hosts then scattered seven runs across the final four innings to render hopes of a Pleasanton comeback ludicrous.

Nonetheless, there were a few highlights for the valley club.

Pleasanton turned in two double plays. In the first, Nelson to Barry Mori to Parker turned it while Mori flew across second and fired to first to add another in the fourth.

Blanchard led off the bottom of the third with Pleas-anton's first hit, a two-strike high-hopper to deep third that he beat out by a step. Elbert, playing center field, got the other, a head high liner over the second base bag with two out in the fourth.

The Pleasanton National All-Stars concluded post-season play with a 6-1 record, including the four straight wins that earned them the District 57 championship.

Erratic A's romp, 9-1

OAKLAND — Winning, by itself, isn't going to do the Oakland A's a bit of good.

"That's the big hitch," acknowledged Oakland Manager Chuck Tanner Saturday after Mike Torrez had pitched the Athletics to a 9-1 win over the California Angels, "they have to lose."

"They" are American League-West leading Kansas City Royals, 11 games in front of the runner-up and, lest we forget, defending division champion A's.

With only 51 games — including two today against the Angels — to play, the A's need a miracle.

Or, as Torrez rather nastily phrased it, "They might get the American Legion plague. You never know."

Torrez didn't actually dominate the Angels Saturday, giving up eight hits but not walking a runner until the ninth, when he issued two in a row after two were out.

California scored its run in the fourth on Bruce Bochet's double — play grounder following back-to-back singles by Bobby Bonds and Tony Solaita. Dan Briggs then doubled before Torrez got Ron Jackson to ground out, ending the inning.

Only in the sixth, when Solaita and Bochte hit consecutive singles, and in the ninth, when Bochte and Briggs drew the walks, did the Angels get base runners as far as second through the remainder of the game.

Oakland was meanwhile scoring single runs in each of the first three innings before sending Angel starter Don Kirkwood to the bench with a four-run fifth. The A's added single markers in the sixth and eighth to complete the scoring.

Two of the runs, those coming in the third and the eighth innings, were the result of homers, the former by AL-leading Sam Rice and the latter by Billy North. Bando has 22, North a slightly lower two.

McKenna stars in breaststroke

WALNUT CREEK — Kevin McKenna of the NorCal Aquatic swim team captured first place in the boys' 100-meter breaststroke with a 1:15.2 clocking in a Junior Nationals qualifying meet at Heather Farms Park here yesterday.

McKenna was not the only valley swimmers to star at the meet as Kris Franklin of the Livermore Aquacowboys swam to a 4:40.1 first place in the girls' 400-meter freestyle. Franklin also finished fourth in the 200-meter freestyle with a 2:20.1 time.

Susan Hoppe, Franklin's teammate, also garnered a first when she won her heat of the girls' 400-meter individual medley in 5:48.1. She also swam in the 100-meter breaststroke and recorded a 1:31.8 clocking.

Paul Lohmann of the Aquacowboys also turned in a fine performance. He took third in the 400-meter individual medley and captured first in the 200-meter backstroke (2:22.6).

Kathy Cohan of the Pleasanton Swim Team was third in the girls' 400-meter individual medley with a 5:28.1 clocking. Teammate Nancy Thompson was second in the girls' 200-meter backstroke with a 2:36.9 time. Cohan went 2:44.1 in the same event.

Thompson also swam to a fourth place in the 200-meter freestyle.

Patti Daley of the Aquacowboys swam to a first in the girls' 100-meter butterfly with a 1:10.4 clocking, over half a second ahead of her nearest competitor.

Burke waits for offers

"A little free publicity never hurts," say Hollywood's battle-scarred press agents. Just spell the name right.

Pleasanton's Mike Burke borrowed a page from the flack's handbook this summer when he signed as a free agent with the Oakland Raiders.

The veteran National and World Football League punter knew there wasn't much hope of dislodging 100-grand a year foot Ray Guy from his 15-yard dropback slot.

But after a year away from the pros, Burke, who played quarterback and running back at Amador Valley High School during the mid-sixties, wanted to let NFL coaches know he's still available.

Cut Tuesday by the Raiders, Burke believes he is far from washed up.

"I never had any intention of taking Ray's job away," he explained from his home yesterday. "It was a longshot to get my name back into circulation."

That the former Los Angeles Ram was even given a look by the Raiders this season ranks as something of an accomplishment. In the three years since Guy, twice the NFL's leading punter, has been with the club, Oakland has never had another punter in camp.

For now, Burke plans to sit back and wait for a possible offer, which he expects to be forthcoming.

"I've got some people working on placing me with another club," he said optimistically. "It really depends on how the punters with NFL teams do this weekend (in the second round of pre-season games)."

Over the course of his eight-game stint with the Rams in 1974, Burke averaged 37 yards per kick and displayed a knack for the coffin-corner, slicing five kicks out of bounds inside the Viking 11-yard line in one game with Minnesota.

Originally signed by the Miami Dolphins as both a punter and place-kicker in 1973, Burke was briefly with the Southern California Sun the following season, kicking five times for a 36.6-yard average.

After attending both Oregon State and Chabot, Burke settled at the University of Miami (Florida) where he competed in three sports. The Sacramento born athlete swam to a record in the 100-yard breast stroke and wrestled for the Hurricanes.

The seemingly odd combination of football and swimming never struck Burke as unusual.

"I'd done it since high school," he related. "The only time it bothered me was when I had to make a decision between the two sports."

Soccer club has clinics

The Livermore Soccer club is sponsoring several clinics for coaches, referees and players.

A no-fee mini-clinic will be operated by the club for first and second-year referees August 18 and 19. The clinics, which will be held at the Carnegie Building from 7:30 to 10 p.m., will be geared towards introducing new referees to the game.

For further information call 443-0836.

The club still has openings for the last session of the annual coaches' clinic. Students will be instructed in both the practical and theoretical areas of coaching. Written materials and diagrams will be provided and the latest training films will be shown.

The sessions runs for two weeks from August 9 through the 19th, three nights a week. For further information call 447-8182.

The Tri-Valley Soccer clinic is also sponsored by the Livermore Soccer Club and is currently in session. Two sessions are still available, August 9 through August 13 and August 16-20.

Each clinic will be for four hours each day Monday through Friday.

Instruction includes both classroom and field work. Students will be placed into a group towards their level of competition. Girls and boys, six through 16, are urged to attend. For further information call 447-8182.

Magee in SC tourney

Pleasanton's Courtnae Magee will team with Dell Carter to represent Sunol Valley Golf Course at the Silver Circle Senior Women's Golf Championship September 27 at Old Del Monte Golf Course in Monterey.

Magee shot a net 65 off her 26 handicap to win the low net spot on the team. Carter, an 11-handicap, took low gross with a 13-over par 85.

The Silver Circle, in its second year, is for female golfers over 50 years old with handicaps of 32 or less. Teams made up of a low net and low gross qualifier from various courses in California will play a better-ball tourney for the title in Monterey.

SAN LEANDRO — Rick Howard scored seven points, stole two passes and did a good job on the boards as his All - Star number one squad defeated the All - Star number two team, 95-83 Friday night in the annual San Leandro Summer Basketball All - Star tilt at the Boy's Club here.

Howard was the only player from Pleasanton on the first All - Star team. Both squads were made up of players from the various teams in the league's regular summer season.

The losers had about half their players from league champion Bishop O'Dowd and the rest from Moreau and Marina.

Runner - up St. Joseph has several of its players on the winners' squad.

The losers jumped off to a 22-21 first - quarter advantage, mostly because of the outstanding play of 6-8 center Guy Williams, who canned 35 points for the contest. Williams sank five field goals in the first period and dominated the boards against his smaller opponents.

However, the second quarter brought a quick change as team one took advantage of its quickness and outside shooting. Led by Gene Agnew, who played for St. Joseph, the winners constantly stole the ball from their taller opponents. They also took advantage of several free throws, sinking 10 of their charity attempts in this period.

The third quarter brought much of the same results. Agnew and spunky guard Lou Bremmond (another St. Joseph player) continued their fine playmaking and outside shooting as the winners gradually pulled away. Bremmond hit for eight of his 20 points in this quarter as his team took a 70-50 advantage at the break.

Both team substituted liberally in the final period and the losers finally started to eliminate their mistakes. Williams, hit for 14 points in this quarter, mostly from the outside.

Howard was at his best in the final quarter, scoring two field goals and one free throw. He also blocked one shot.

The final quarter was a free-for-all shooting match between the two clubs. Williams led his team to 33 points in the period and the winners swished the nets for 25 markers.

Agnew led the winners with 25 points, most of them coming on breakaways. He also canned five of six free throw attempts. Paul Fox added 17 points for the winners. Ron Beals tallied 20 for the losers, all on field goals. No other losing player was in double figures.

Car washers

Copy of a letter to — Pleasanton Planning Commission:

It has come to my attention that Frank Iouthan is attempting to get a variance on a piece of downtown property which is now zoned cc for a full service car wash. It would seem obvious that allowing that variance would create even more congestion in an already congested downtown area. It does not follow the quiet downtown atmosphere you have worked so hard to create thus far. There is no such thing as a quiet car wash. Allowing a variance would also create a difficult situation if you denied future requests for variances in downtown cc zones.

A further point of interest you should be made aware of is that I am the new owner (2 months) of the Shell Robo Car Wash at the north end of Main Street (915 Santa Rita Road). We are now in the process of converting one of our two stalls to a full service car wash. Our second stall will remain exterior car wash only. There is already an existing self-service car wash one block from us. Pleasanton cannot support two full service car washes.

If you disregard your master plans, city planners will create a downtown like Dublin, with car washes on every corner and a congested downtown area. I believe your master plans would indicate that car washes be located on the outskirts of the downtown area where we are now located and properly zoned.

Airport dining

Editor, The Times:
Several weeks ago I read with interest a letter which appeared in all three valley newspapers written by Mr. A.R. Taylor in which he voiced his concern about what he described as a "second rate restaurant" being allowed to assume the lease on the airport restaurant facility formerly occupied by the Tailwinds for the meager rental of $850 per month.

I believe Mr. Taylor has misinterpreted several facts. First, he apparently is not aware that in addition to a guaranteed rent of $850 per month, the lessee must pay a percentage of the gross receipts. I don't know what that percentage amounts to but I understand it's a considerable amount. Also, all remodeling expenses are borne by the lessee.

Mr. Taylor seems somehow to have drawn the conclusion that "family type restaurant" is synonymous with McDonald's, Jack-in-the-Box, Col. Sanders, et al. I can assure him from personal experiences that such is definitely not the case.

In 1970, while our restaurant facility stood vacant (as it had for several years since its construction) three of us flew to Yucca Valley Airport in Southern California and happen upon the newly opened Red Baron Restaurant there. We were all impressed with the quality of the meals, the reasonable prices and the friendly service.

We met the owner, who told us he was negotiating at that time with the City of Livermore to open a Red Baron Restaurant here. Apparently he like many others, was scared away by the stiff demands of the City.

When I found that the Red Baron had opened at Reid - Hillview Airport in San Jose, I made it a point to eat there. I was not disappointed.

I feel confident that the Red Baron image will be continued in their Livermore location. They will certainly have to "try harder" to overcome the stigma of the Crosswinds/Tailwinds fiasco. I recommend that Mr. Taylor reserve judgement until after he enjoys a meal at the Red Baron.

Business needed

Editor, The Times:
In regards to the Times August 1, Mr. Brandes raps

"lax" City action. Brandes stated that residents might not have to pay so much for sewer service if the Cheese Factory and a few other business establishments were charged to a cost bearing level. That is a questionable remark.

A good example is the last primary election doing away with tax loopholes of $23 million for Insurance Company's Home Office Tax Deduction. The voters voted to do away with the tax loophole by a 2-1 vote. But, what price are we going to pay for that blunder. The decision was fair but not just.

An example, there are approximately 12 million working force in California and a $23 million loophole it cost we taxpayers approximately $2 per year or 4 cents per week for that loophole. Now the outcome of that decision. We the taxpayer will probably get a cost raise on our insurance premium within a year when our policy is due the raise between $5 to $10. So what have we gained it now cost us $3 to $7 more for less service.

So Mr. Brandes and all you environmentalist before you start making all kinds of changes and chances of having these business establishments moving away. It could cost we taxpayers a hell of a lot more then we are paying now with No extra benefits.

RR mistakes

Editor, The Times:
About your front page story in Times, Wed. 8/4/76 — "Livermore Says Yes To Isabel."

Why didn't Livermore say "yes" to the 3,029 registered voters who asked to put the railroad relocation and underpass project to a vote of the people? Why couldn't half a loaf then be better than none?

After seeing the traffic mess and your story on now - you - see - it and now - you - don't stop signs on Railroad, it seems to many of us that the project was a disaster and we would have been ahead without it! Not only that, we wouldn't be on the verge of bankruptcy.

Parness is happy because he thinks he will get his hands on the Isabel project money and put that into the general fund to cover the RR project mistakes. Then he'll retire at a nice retirement and the next guy will have to worry about paying the bills.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

At Yorktown, on Oct. 19, 1781, Britain's Cornwallis surrendered his army to American and French forces commanded by Gen. Washington. The campaign ended in a classic military siege of the fortified port of Yorktown in which the allied troops encircled the British fortifications. As the British weakened under the continuous artillery fire, the Allies erected an even closer siege line. Lord Cornwallis, despairing of relief, surrendered his force rather than waste his men's lives. The World Almanac reveals.

Hot accordion man

David Duncan, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Duncan of Brooks Ct. in Pleasanton, was a recent award winner in musical competitions held at the Hilton Inn in Oakland.

Hundreds of accordion, guitar and piano competitors between eight and 21 years of age came from all over California, Nevada and Oregon to be judged for versatility and competence.

Within his eight-year-old division, David was successful in taking a first place in the Prince Division and the Open-A Solos, as well as second Places in the Intermediate solos and the Qualified solos.

The Donlon third grader already is the holder of an impressive array of trophies for his accordion ability. A student of Tony Cerrvone of San Leandro, he has only been taking accordion lessons for three years.

Holdup request on dog fines

LIVERMORE — Livermore Police Capt. Jack Essex has asked the Livermore City Council to place a 60 day moratorium on the enactment of new dog license and penalty fees until all Livermore residents are contacted in a house-to-house canvass.

Starting Tuesday, 15 to 30 Explorer Scouts under the direction of the Animal Control Department will begin a canvass of residences to alert citizens to the city's dog licensing ordinance.

Capt. Essex has asked the council to suspend its planned dog license fee increase from $4 to $7 for an intact dog, from $2 to $3.50 for an altered dog until the scouts can alert citizens to the licensing requirements.

The new fees were scheduled to go into effect around Sept. 1. If the council approves the request, the fees will not take effect until Nov. 1.

The scouts are expected to complete their house-to-house program within a month to six weeks.

Capt. Essex said it is the department's intention to give citizens initially contacted a two-week period to obtain their licenses without a penalty fee being assessed. Currently a $4 penalty is levied for non-compliance, but that fine will jump to $25 when the new fees go into effect.

If after the two-week period the records indicate that the license has not been obtained, an animal control officer will make a contact and issue a citation.

Capt. Essex proposes that the council also waive the current late penalty fee for late licensing until after first contact has been made. A fee would be collected if the resident does not comply after that point.

The animal canvass is the first attempted in the City of Livermore. A similar program was carried out in Fremont where the number of licenses issued increased three to four times.

A costume contest, open to all, will present a daily $100 first prize.

A summer in government

Four Valley high school students have recently returned from the Junior Statesmen Summer School in Sacramento.

Juliane Nelson of Dublin High, Joseph Kennedy, Eugene Lara and Carl Latkin of Granada High studied politics and government with 74 other high school students from California and Arizona. They were selected on the basis of academic achievement, leadership, interest in social sciences and service to the school and community.

The 36th annual session of the Junior Statesmen Summer School was conducted on the Davis campus of the University of California. Included in the course of study were American government classes with a heavy emphasis on state and local government, public speaking, leadership and ethics.

Enriching the summer school curriculum were small-group meetings in the state capitol building with political leaders. These Capitol Program sessions were divided into 15 minutes of prepared remarks followed by a free-wheeling 45-minute question and answer period.

Highlighting this summer's program were hour-long sessions with Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., U.S. Senator John V. Tunney, U.S. Congressman John E. Moss, Lt. Gov. Mervyn Dymally, attorney general Evelle J. Younger, secretary of state March Fong Eu, Assemblyman Robert Cline, Assemblyman Howard Berman, Assemblyman Willie Brown, State Sen. Bill Greene, Secretary of Health and Welfare Mario Obledo, "California Journal" editor Ed Salzman, and Edwin Meese III, former executive secretary to Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The summer school is run by the Junior Statesmen Foundation, a nonprofit corporation.

Checking in Stoneridge Homeowners Association President Bob Gardner donated a check worth $825 to the city last week for acquisition of picnic tables at Muirwood Park. The tables will replace those destroyed by vandalism.

Assessment appeal deadline nearing

Homeowners who wish to contest the assessed valuation of their homes must do so before Sept. 15 in Alameda County and before Aug. 26 in Contra Costa County.

The State Board of Equalization reminds homeowners that appeals received after that date cannot be considered.

If you have not received notice of the assessed value of your property, that information can be obtained from the county assessor. This is available by phone or mail if the property can be properly identified, preferably by parcel number.

A property owner can contest the assessor's full value estimate if he believes it is excessive. Except for land in the open space program, full value is defined as the price a seller could obtain from a buyer in standard circumstances.

Owners cannot expect relief just because taxes are generally too high or the current assessed valuation is higher than last year's. The current assessed value must be excessive relative to what the property was worth on March 1, 1976.

To most effectively contest the assessor's full value, homeowners are advised to learn the market values of comparable properties in their neighborhood.

Appeal forms may be obtained from the clerk of each county board of supervisors.

Signs gone Monday

LIVERMORE — Public Works Director Dan Lee announced Friday that the stop signs on L Street at Railroad Avenue will be removed on Monday, Aug. 9.

Last week the Livermore City Council approved their removal, changing the intersection from a four-way to a two-way stop.

Lee said the department anticipates some confusion will result from the change. He asks that motorists exhibit caution when using this intersection, particularly during the period when the public is adjusting to the change.

Two Views On LSD's Use

Dear Ann Landers: I just finished the letter signed "Frightened For Her," written by a 17-year-old girl who was worried about her older sister who is taking LSD to help her lose 30 pounds.

I, like many other young people, also experimented with acid in high school. Someone should tell the sister that she stands a good chance of losing a lot more than just weight.

I started on LSD because it was the "in" thing to do. I soon wished I had never even heard of the stuff. After tripping regularly for six months, I began to feel the terrible effects.

My nerves got so bad I was afraid to drive a car. I couldn't write properly because my hands shook. I had spells of forgetfulness — couldn't even remember my own phone number. I crashed real bad one night and swore off. Thank God I snapped back to normal. Not everyone is so lucky.

A boy I knew (we used to trip together) really blew his mind. He has been in and out of mental institutions for the last three years and the poor guy looks so awful I didn't recognize him last week.

I realize now how fortunate I was to get off the acid before I messed up my head permanently. Please keep telling it like it is. Sign me — Horseshoe Hilda

I've done a terrible thing and feel like a rat. I want to go to his wife and beg her forgiveness. Now that there is nothing going on between us I can face her. Please tell me what to say. — Ashamed In Texas

Dear Ashamed: If you need to say something, say it in your prayers and leave the man's wife alone.

Confessing might make YOU feel better, but it won't do much for her and it will do absolutely nothing for the teacher except maybe get him into a whole lot of trouble.

OWN A HOME THAT COSTS LESS TO OWN.

Today, when you save energy, you save money. So if you look for a home displaying an Energy Conservation Home sign, you can look forward to owning a home which helps keep energy costs down.

In addition to meeting local, State and Federal (FHA) insulation and weather stripping requirements, an Energy Conservation Home has a combination of special built-in features that either conserve energy or use necessary energy more efficiently and economically. Features will vary with each home; examples are dishwashers with "off" switch for the drying cycle, hot water flow controls, set-back furnace thermostat, fluorescent lighting, and clogged filter indicator on the heating or cooling system.

So make sure your new home has a built-in energy savings plan. Make sure it's an Energy Conservation Home.

KNOW YOUR FOOD

MEAL PLANNING
FROM A
FOOD AD

Study the weekly food ads for the best buys and build your menus around them. Keep in mind the basic four food groups to help make sure the meals provide proper nutrition. After checking your home shelves to see what you've already on hand to fit the menus, make a shopping list and head for the store. If you've any coupons to use, attach them to your shopping list so they won't be overlooked in your purse. At the store, stick to your list but keep flexible enough to take advantage of special in-store values and cents-off buys you can use. If your list is made up according to the store's layout, it will speed shopping time and may also avoid your overlooking some items on the list.

Plan to personally do as much of the meal preparation as you can. Convenience foods can be more expensive. However, there are exceptions. Many flour and pasta mixes cost less than those you make yourself. Frozen orange juice concentrate costs less than fresh-squeezed orange juice. It pays to make comparisons on the cost of convenience foods and the cost of home-prepared foods. Then let your budget and time saved help you decide the purchase for you.

Learn to use the unit price tags that show the per-measure cost of each item. If you can use the larger size, buy it and save money. If you'd let part of it go to waste, then by all means choose the smaller size even if the per-measure cost is a bit higher. In making your comparisons, be sure to check on the store brands because they often offer you a much better value than a national brand. In cases where appearance isn't so important, such as tomato bits and pieces for soup, a lower-priced brand is a good buy.

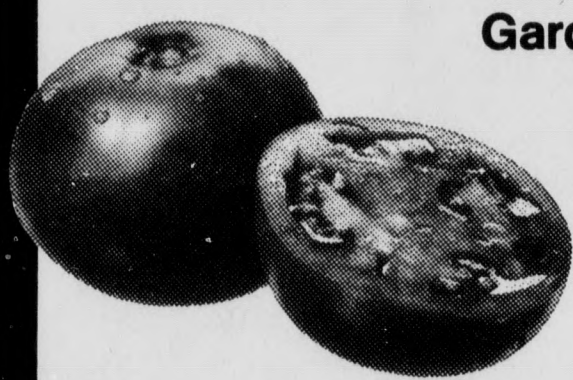

A good rule is to avoid shopping when you're hungry...it may lead to buying foods you don't really need. Early morning is a good time to shop because you can take your time in comparing items. Early evening is also a good time if you're employed out of the home.

Don't forget to take advantage of any leftovers in your menu planning. For instance, a little bit of leftover pork roast goes a long way in making a dish such as chow mein or chop suey.
